

The Miami Herald

Posted on Wed, Mar. 04, 2009

Library poised to help job seekers

The Miami-Dade Public Library System is offering a wide assortment of information and valuable assistance for job seekers. From computer classes and access to the Internet, to help in resumé writing, job interviewing skills and test preparation, the library can help patrons prepare for and search for jobs. Free classes are held throughout all 47 branch locations and are available in both English and Spanish.

Free computer classes include basic computer skills, how to create a resumé, how to set up an e-mail account as well as how to navigate the Internet to search for jobs. The library's extensive databases include the Learning Express Library which offers practice tests, exercises, skill-building courses and information designed to help individuals achieve the results they want.

The Library also allows patrons with a library card in good standing to use a computer at any branch location to access the Internet and apply for jobs. You can also bring a laptop to any branch to access the Internet through the library's free WiFi service.

At mdpls.org, there's a Job Search section that can be accessed from any location 24/7. Alternatively, call 305-375-BOOK (305-375-2665).

© 2009 Miami Herald Media Company. All Rights Reserved.
<http://www.miamiherald.com>